83 Reducing alcohol-related violence and improving community safety: The Alcohol Linking Program

A ten-year collaborative initiative to reduce community harm from excessive alcohol consumption in specific licensed premises has been adopted into routine policing practice in both NSW and New Zealand.

John H. Wiggers

86 The NSW Health routine screening for domestic violence program

This paper describes and assesses current NSW screening for domestic abuse by partners; however, debate continues over whether screening does reduce domestic violence.

Joanne M. Spangaro

90 Leaving violent relationships and avoiding homelessness – providing a choice for women and their children

Current assumptions are that women and children should leave the family home to leave a domestically violent relationship. This research describes factors that allow them to remain in their own homes after the removal of a violent offender.

Jan Breckenridge and Jane Mulroney

94 Strengthening the effectiveness of 'whole of government' interventions to break the cycle of violence in disadvantaged communities

Evidence from the evaluation of two interventions in response to community violence demonstrates the ability to improve safety and security in disadvantaged communities.

Submission of articles

The Bulletin accepts proffered and commissioned articles along with short reports, on all aspects of public health. Articles should be 1500–2000 words, not including tables and figures, and should include an abstract of up to 100 words. Articles should follow the journal style and layout as closely as possible, as described in the Instructions to Authors. Articles should be emailed in a Word for Windows format to: phbulletin@doh.health.nsw.gov.au, and should be accompanied by a covering letter signed by all authors and a License to Publish. The Instructions to Authors, License to Publish and other useful information can be downloaded from the Bulletin website.

Distribution

The Bulletin is freely available from the Bulletin website. Copies of the current issue and back issues can be downloaded in both PDF and HTML formats. If you would like to be notified when new issues of the Bulletin are available online, subscribe to the early alert email system at the Bulletin website. The early alert email contains the contents of each new issue along with electronic links to the articles. To receive a printed copy of the Bulletin, subscribe online at the Bulletin website, or contact your local public health unit or the editorial office.
