Corresponding author¹:

Public Health Research & Practice (the Journal) is published and produced by The Sax Institute (Institute) in electronic format. The Institute is responsible for both its publication and the sourcing of the Journal's copyright material.

The Journal is an open access journal which operates under a Creative Commons Licence Deed (Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International).

This Licence to Publish document (the Licence) sets out the terms and conditions upon which the Author/s provide the Work (manuscript/s) to the Institute for use and publication in the Journal. The licence agreement assists with the protection of copyright material and permits the Institute to respond to third party requests in relation to the copyright material.

Please read this document carefully and fill in the required information. By submitting the Work and a signed copy of this Licence to Publish, the Author/s agree to the terms and conditions listed below.

1. Warranty

The Author/s warrant that they own the copyright in the Work, and that the Work:

- (a) Has not been published before and is not being considered for publication elsewhere
- (b) Does not violate any intellectual property rights of any third party, contain any defamatory content, or contain any matter that contravenes any Australian Commonwealth, State or Territory law (this includes any images, tables, graphs or figures accompanying the Work)

¹ To be agreed by corresponding author or guarantor on behalf of all authors. The corresponding author acknowledges that he/she is signing on behalf of all the authors and with their authorisation.

- (c) Meets the ethical standards of the relevant research discipline.

2. Licence

The Author/s grant to the Institute an irrevocable exclusive worldwide licence to:

- (a) Reproduce, publish or communicate the Work to the public for any purpose
- (b) Publish the Work in the Journal, which the Author/s acknowledge is open access and operates under a Creative Commons Licence Deed (Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International) that permits readers of the Journal to:
 - i. Copy and redistribute the Work, in whole or in part in any medium or format; and
 - ii. Adapt the Work, in whole or in part, and share that adapted Workprovided that:
 - i. They attribute the Work
 - ii. They do not use the Work for commercial purposes
 - iii. Any distribution of their adapted version of the Work be on the same Creative Commons licence terms.
- (c) Approve reasonable requests from third parties to use the Work for commercial purposes where appropriate.

3. Author/s rights

The Author/s retain the right to:

- (a) Use copies of the Work for non-commercial purposes
- (b) Use the Work for further research and presentations
- (c) Use any figures, tables, and research data contained in the Work in their own future works
- (d) Include the Work in a thesis provided the thesis is not published for commercial gain.

4. Acknowledgment

- (a) The Institute will acknowledge the Author/s as the Author/s of the Work.
- (b) The Author/s agree to acknowledge the contribution of the Institute as the original publisher of the Work in any subsequent use of the Work.
- (c) The Author/s agree to include a link to the publication of the Work on the Public Health Research and Practice website in all digital copies used by the Author/s.

5. Commercial use

The Author/s agree not to reproduce the Work or authorise others to reproduce or use the Work or adaptations of the Work for any commercial publication or commercial purpose. Any requests should be referred to Public Health Research & Practice for consideration.

6. No endorsement

The Author/s must not imply any endorsement by the Institute, or the Journal Editorial Board of the content of the Work.

7. Reservation of rights

If the Work is not published in the Journal, all rights contained in this Licence to Publish revert to the Author/s.

8. Indemnity

The Author/s will be liable for and will indemnify the Institute for any damages or loss incurred as a result of a breach by the Author/s of their obligations or warranties under this Licence to Publish.
